

A snow ranger from Cooke City and a member of the USGS completed the daunting task of trying to find the ground under more than 10' of snow. This pit was dug near Daisy Pass and had a depth of 133 inches. The main instabilities in the snowpack exist in the top 1-3' and mostly involve wind blown snow. Photo: M. Dixon

Advisory Region
Cooke City

Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanche Advisory for Thu Mar 1, 2018GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Fri Mar 2,

2018GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Sun Mar 4, 2018

Cooke City, 2018-02-28