

The Fin/Woody Ridge

Date

Fri, 11/27/2020 - 18:34

Activity

Skiing

We found 145 cm on an east aspect on Republic, nice and right side up with no real weak layers or persistent grains (ECTX). The snow on the Fin skied great and was pleasantly unaffected by any wind or sun. Aside from two very small isolated wind pockets I triggered near the bottom there was minimal slough. Later in the afternoon we headed over to Woody Ridge. We didn't dig but it felt as though the solar crust I felt forming last weekend had faceted and the snow had actually gotten deeper despite not a ton of precip since then.

Region

Cooke City

Location (from list)

Mt Republic

Observer Name

Henry Coppolillo